Sign structure work causes brief lane closures on Stony Plain Road and 100th Avenue in Edmonton

Edmonton... Motorists can expect brief lane closures and minor delays on Stony Plain Road and 100th Avenue where they intersect Anthony Henday Drive in Edmonton.

The lane closures accommodate construction of concrete piles for overhead sign structures. The left-hand lane of westbound Stony Plain Road will be closed following the afternoon rush hour on Sept. 6 and will reopen by 3:30 p.m. on Sept. 7. The inside lane of eastbound 100th Avenue will be closed at 9 a.m. on Sept. 7 and reopen by 3:30 p.m. the same day.

Alberta Transportation is working closely with the City of Edmonton to minimize traffic disruptions to motorists for interchange construction on Anthony Henday Drive at Stony Plain Road, Lessard Road, Callingwood Road and Cameron Heights Drive.

Motorists should also use caution in these areas and obey all signs and message boards. Motorists are reminded that fines for speeding are doubled through construction zones when workers are present.
